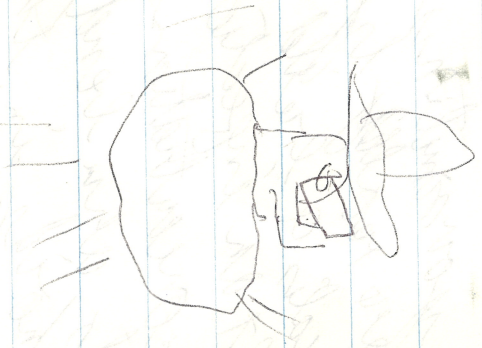
(appendix?) coccyx, appendix

(tonsils?) Vestige - left over from premature men

Mark Swaim
7B3 - FH1

Alexander Gregory
Nov. 22, 1988


What's the purpose of the lymphatic system?
Lymph nodes filter bacteria from lymph before it returns to the blood stream
Swollen glands you sometimes feel in your throat or neck are really lymph nodes. The swelling indicates a build up of white blood cells to fight an infection. The highest lymph node concentrations are in the throat, armpits, groin, head and neck. Tonsils & adenoids in the throat are merely lymphatic tissue masses. Lymph bathes every cell in the body & that cell dumps waste into lymph. Lymph picks up amino acid, fatty acid & glycerol. Excretory system is made up of the lungs, the kidneys, and skin and large intestine.